THE DAILY JOURNAL

Is the best daily paper published on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, east of Sacramento, and having a general circulation throughout the State. It is especially valuable as an advertising medium.

THE DAILY AND WEEKLY JOURNAL have a combined circulation larger than that of any interior journal of Nevada, excepting those on the Comstock.

PROGRESS WITH THE CANAL.

M. de Lesseps pushes forward with great energy the organization of his company for the construction of an isthmus canal. A New York Herald special cable despatch announces that he has signed an obligation to the Colombian government in consideration of which he obtains the concession for the canal, and the company, with a capital of four hundred million francs (eighty million dollars) will be constituted immediately. He repudiates all idea of the intervention of any government into the concerns of a strictly commercial enterprise, and while he recognizes the right of the United States to interested supervision he denies that the canal project has any nationality. His theory, strictly followed, is, while assuming that the utility of the canal must be universal, Paris should be the central seat of its operations, because the severity of the French laws and the strictness of official supervision give greater security to shareholders and efficient control over the administration. There is a project mooted to make General Grant the honorary president of the company—a step that would widely commend it to popularity here, though it would not remove the features that have excited opposition. The Herald thinks it is not possible to make this canal apart from considerations of nationality. With an enterprise that is French as to its moral nature and Colombian as to its location it will only be a question which of these shall prevail and as the Colombian is reasonably certain to go in advance we should not like to see the governments of Europe, on account of defective Colombian finances, levying an execution and seizing the canal.

A general order announcing promotions and appointments in the army made by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate since the publication of general orders No. 67, of September 2d, 1870, is being prepared in the Adjutant General's office and will shortly be promulgated. It is the most important order of the kind that has been issued since 1871, and army officers are anxiously looking for it. It will show that two officers have been advanced to the rank of Brigadier General, twelve to the rank of Colonel, eighteen to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, thirty to the rank of Major, seventy-six to the rank of Captain, and that eighty-two Second Lieutenants have had the official distance between themselves and General Sherman reduced by one step. It will also show that twelve officers have been retired from active service on their own application, four by order of the President under the sixty-two-years-of-age law, forty-five on account of disability incident to the service, two for disability not incident to the service and two wholly retired. Also that there have been nine resignations, thirty deaths, four dismissals and one desertion. Another general order will also be issued in a few days announcing the assignment to regiments and corps of the West Point graduates of 1870.

CATTLE SHIPMENT.—The shipment of cattle from Nevada to San Francisco, which marked former years, has almost ceased and the tide has turned eastward. The cause for this is to be found in the increasing European demand for cheap American beef. The Elko Post says very large bands have been driven this year to the fine grazing lands of Nebraska, whence, after they are thoroughly fattened, they are shipped to Chicago. Cattle raising east of that point is barely sufficient for the local trade, and the foreign supply is drawn from Nevada and Texas chiefly. It is an encouraging sign for our large breeders, for the trade regularly increases as foreign jealousy is broken down.

The recent abolishment of special rates for traveling companies by the Pennsylvania and other railroads, creates a quiet furor among actors and managers as tending to break up the combination system. They declare it will be impossible to take companies on the road without a large pecuniary loss, and proposes calling a meeting and sending representatives to the Louisville convention of ticket agents next September, to secure action against the measure.

A gentleman in Eureka has in his possession an old coin bearing the date of 1732. On the same side is the representation of a rose, and the inscription, "Rosa Americana Utile Dulci. On the reverse side, Georgius Dei Gratia Rex.

A country girl, getting off a train at Cape May, was asked if she might be helped to alight, and she replied that she did not smoke.

GORHAM'S SPEECH.

A careful perusal of the speech delivered by Gorham in San Francisco last week will convince almost anyone that it is as near correct as possible, without aid from the Railroad Directory, and the answer to the statement published by the Sacramento Record-Union, and which was published in this paper a few days ago, is so complete, that we do not wonder that the Record-Union has yet made no attempt to criticize Gorham's reply. The truth is that the profits which the railroad company has made, have gone into the pockets of the insiders who own the "Contract and Finance Company," "Western Development Company," and "Pacific Improvement Company." Astonishing as this is, the wonder is, that after deducting everything claimed as expenses, the railroad company could still make such a showing of profit as to be able to declare dividends of eight per cent.

COUNTY DEBTS.

The debt of Ormsby county is $116,667.84 and it has $4,725.27 in the treasury. The receipts for the past six months aggregate $18,209.96, and the disbursements were 30,489.06.

Douglas county owes but $2,576.50 and has cash on hand to the amount of $2,129.89.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Governor Miller, of Arkansas, is for Hendricks.

In the opinion of the St. Louis Republican the South has as good a right to be "solid" on one side as New England on the other.

The St. Louis Republican would like to know whether this is Mr. Hayes' administration or Mr. Sherman's. It is Sherman here, there and everywhere.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is confident that if Mr. Tilden himself be not the next nominee of the Democratic party the Tilden interest will name the man. This is not very encouraging for Mr. Hendricks.

The result of the extra session of Congress, says the Utica (N. Y.) Herald, is that the President stands to-day as strong with the people at large as well as with the party that elected him as any President ever stood in the United States.

In the event of Governor Talbot withdrawing from the political field in Massachusetts the Boston Herald thinks that Lieutenant Governor Long would be the Republican nominee for Governor. Mr. Talbot can succeed himself if he wishes.

In the opinion of the Toronto Mail the Monroe doctrine "has been almost as completely forgotten as if it had never been propounded by a President of the Republic." It would hardly be safe for the Mail to act upon this, to it, comforting theory.

The St. Louis Post does not want Mr. Tilden next time. The Democratic candidate, it says, must be a man who, radically unlike him, is neither without nor afraid of blood. The thermometer was 100 in the shade in St. Louis when this opinion was given.

The Buffalo Courier, in an article on the Democratic situation in New York, advises the rival leaders to take a back seat in the next Convention and allow the disinterested members of the party to decide between them. Unless some policy is adopted the chances of success this Fall, it believes, are pretty blue.

According to the Louisville Courier-Journal, the principal organ of Mr. Tilden, Mr. Tilden has no chance whatever of obtaining the first place on the next Democratic national ticket. He has not, it says, any strength in the South, and would be impossible for him to carry New York even if Mr. Kelly were as dead as Julius Caesar.

Mr. Blaine, the Chicago Inter-Ocean declares, is a great annoyance to the Democrats in the Senate. Mr. Eaton thinks he is too inquisitive, Mr. Hill argues that he is too bumptious, Mr. Davis suggests that he is too emphatic; Mr. Kernan explains that he is too meddlesome, and another prominent, but persecuted Democrat says:—"Blaine thrashes round our cornfield in such a way as to cause me to want to knock him down."

At Omaha a disgusting exhibition is in progress in the shape of a rooster which although having his head cut off still lives. His head was cut off in Kansas four months ago, and the rooster ran under a house, whence in a day or two he was taken out alive, having refused to die. The present proprietor hearing of it bought it for $50, and he says he has refused $7,000 for it. He claims he is making a mint of money out of it. The bird is fed in the throat and takes nourishment rapidly, is in fat condition, and stands up and walks around at leisure. Surgeons explain it by saying that the head was cut off at the base of the brain, near the end of the spinal column, which was not broken. The head is preserved in alcohol.

A petition is being circulated among the printers of the State asking Executive clemency in Chartz' behalf.

THE MILKY WAY.

The luminous zone which encircles the heavens was called, on account of its peculiar brightness, by the Greeks, Galatia, the Galaxy, and by the Romans, Via Lactea, the Milky Way. Passing like a stream across the firmament, here growing narrower and there spreading, at one point divided and at another seeming to flow with an increased and united volume, it became known in Chinese annals as the Celestial River.

The less civilized aborigines of Mexico, who regarded this band of light as the path by which the spirits of the departed bravos reached the "happy hunting grounds" named it the River of Souls. But, although the Galaxy in every age has given rise to wonder and admiration, and has been viewed with equal interest by the learned and the ignorant, still the cause of this permanent bow of the nightly sky long remained a mystery. The fertile imagination of the Greek philosophers, the long-continued observations of the Arabian astronomers and the careful scrutiny of the heavens which followed the revival of learning, alike failed to make known the real source of the beautiful phenomenon. This was among the revelations of the telescope, and yet Galileo and others had scanned the starry dome more than half a century with this "eye of the mind" before Milton, with an approximation to scientific truth, could speak of the "broad and ample road whose dust is gold . . . pavement stars."

This silvery belt is visible at all seasons of the year, but in latitudes North of the equator is most conspicuous during the Summer and Autumn months.

It is brighter in the southern hemisphere than in northern, though in each it varies both in breadth and brilliancy. When examining the zone of stars with his powerful reflector the elder Herschel was led to the conclusion that not less than fifty thousand of these self-luminous bodies were included in a breadth of two thousand passed in review before him in a quarter of an hour. The countless multitudes of these distant suns are irregularly grouped. Clusters are numerous, especially the southern part. In certain regions they are strewn with great uniformity, in others patches of them are succeeded by intervals in which few are seen, while in some places, as the Coal Sack in the Southern Cross and the "dark spot" in the northern constellation of that name they were looked for in vain. Not only the Milky Way, but the heavens, in this vicinity, appear more thickly set with stars than other portions of the celestial canopy, but whether this is actually the case or owing to the position from which they are viewed cannot be determined.

Everyone is familiar with the fact that if he looks toward the horizon when rain is falling the drops appear more numerous than when he directs his view to some distance above it, though the number in reaching the surface is the same. It is, therefore, possible that if the earth occupied a different position in space the stars in another portion of the heavens would become the galaxy, and that this "band of brilliants" is owing to an apparent and not a real proximity of the stellar sun.

While the stars in the galaxy, whose bladed light alone is perceived by the unaided eye, are so thickly strewn as to defy every effort to ascertain their number, they are but a part of the shining orbs which roll through space. These a moderate computation places at one hundred millions, and every increase in the range of the telescope enlarges the amount. If each of self-luminous bodies, like our nearest star, the sun, is a centre around which as many opaque globes revolve as are now known to derive their light and heat from the ruler of the day, the multitude of worlds reaches a number which human intellect fails to grasp. It is when engaged in such contemplations that man is made aware of his finite powers by his inability to comprehend the infinite, while at the same time he obtains enlarged views of the wisdom and power of Him "who created and governs all."

LONG AND SHORT SLEEPERS.—Seamen and soldiers, from habit, can sleep when they will and wake up when they will.

Captain Barclay when performing his wonderful feat of walking 1,000 miles in as many consecutive hours, obtained such a mastery over himself that he fell asleep the minute he lay down.

The faculty of remaining asleep for a length of time is possessed by some individuals.

Such was the case with Quin, the celebrated player, who would slumber for twenty-four hours successively; with Elizabeth Orvin, who slept three-fourths of her life; with Elizabeth Perkins, who slept for a week or a fortnight at a time; with Mary Lyell, who did the same for successive weeks; and many others more or less remarkable.

A phenomenon of an opposite character is sometimes observed, for there are other individuals who can subsist on a surprisingly small portion of sleep.

The celebrated General Elliott was an instance of this kind; he never slept more than four hours out of twenty-four.

In all other respects he was strikingly abstinent, his food consisting wholly of bread, water and vegetables.

In a letter communicated to Sir John Sinclair by John Gordon of Swine, mention is made of a person named John Mackay of Skerry, who died in Strathnavie in the year 1797, aged 91 he only slept on an average four hours in the twenty-four, and was a remarkably robust and healthy man.

Frederick the Great of Prussia, and the illustrious surgeon, John Hunter, only slept five hours during the same period.

The celebrated French General, Pichegru, informed Sir Gilbert Blane that during a whole year's campaign he had not allowed himself above one hour's sleep in the twenty-four.

A man who made a business of writing obituaries, epitaphs, etc., used to solicit patronage far and near. Hearing of the death of a man in a distant part of the country, and business being a little dull, he made a journey there. Finding the widow of the deceased person he stated his occupation, and asked if she wouldn't like a few lines about her husband. "Lines about him?" she said, wofully; "he had all the lines he wanted. If he had had one line less he would have been alive to-day." "What ailed him, madam?" "He was hanged."

AN INCOME WITHOUT CARE.

By the combination method of operating in stocks a handsome income can be secured without care. Capital in any amount, from $10 to $60,000, may be used with equal proportionate success. By this system Messrs. Lawrence & Co., Bankers, N. Y., pool the orders of thousands of customers, of various sums, into one vast amount, and co-operate them under the most skillful management, dividing profits monthly. Each shareholder thus obtains all the advantages of the largest capital and experienced skill, and the percentage of profits is very great; 20 will pay 100 in 30 days; $250 will return $1,825, or 7% per cent., on the stock, and so on, as the market varies. A prominent publisher of the Rock Island (Ill.) Daily Argus, made $104.15 on an investment of $20.00, in October. Hundreds of others are doing even better. Messrs. Lawrence & Co.'s new circular has "two unerring rules for success in stock operations" and full information, so that any one can deal in stocks. All kinds of bonds and stocks wanted. New Government bonds supplied. Deposits received. Apply to Lawrence & Co., Bankers, 57 Exchange Place, N. Y. City.
